

EXHIBIT G

From James McDonald posted at absolutewrite.com on February, 2005:

Latest scam agency in the Literary Agency Group scam.

Other scam agencies in this scam group are

The New York Literary Agency

The Christian Literary Agency

The Children's Literary Agency

Stylus Literary Agency

The Screenplay Agency

They were all originally ST Literary Agency. Before that, they were Sydra Techniques.

This is a group out of Boca Raton, Florida (the mailing address in New York City -- 275 Madison Avenue, 4th Floor -- is part of the scam -- that's a mail drop). They're owned by Robert M. Fletcher, a convicted criminal (securities fraud in the state of Washington.)

They have never in their lives sold a literary property to a commercial publisher.

This agency is an utter fraud.

What will Poet's Literary Agency do for you? They'll betray, bluff, burn, cheat, chisel, con, deceive, delude, diddle, double-cross, dupe, entice, exploit, finesse, flimflam, gyp, have, hoodwink, impose on, jockey, juggle, lure, manipulate, mislead, play, rook, rope in, scam, screw, seduce, shave, snow, stick, string along, suck in, take, take in, and trick you.

What they won't do is sell your work to a commercial publisher. They've been in business for seven years and they haven't managed yet.

I'm going to look at one little thing from their website at <http://www.poetsliteraryagency.com/index.html>

Quote:

We do not charge reading fees or any other type of fee. We get paid when you get paid.

This is pure BS. They'll charge plenty. They'll send you from one place to another, expecting you to pay a fee each time you land, all of them (the independent evaluations, the professional editors, and so on) owned and operated by Robert Fletcher. If you leave your checkbook in your pocket Fletcher will drop you faster than you can say "criminal conspiracy."